Amendments to the Specification:

Application programs 112 perform more direct functions for the user. A user normally calls them explicitly, although they can execute implicitly in connection with other applications or by association with particular data files or types. Modules 113 are packages of executable instructions and data, which may perform functions for OS 111 or for applications 112. Dynamic link libraries (.DLL) and class definitions, for instance, supply functions to one or more programs. Operating system 111, application programs 112, and other modules 113 additionally use application program interfaces (APIs) 116. Each API 116 provides an interface to services provided by the respective one of operating system 111, application program 112, or other module 113 with which it is associated. Other APIs are included among API modules (API Mods)~~116~~115.

Applicants submit that the present communication gives the Examiner permission to amend the paragraph appearing on page 5, lines 15—21, to be as indicated herein. The Examiner is asked to note that the last character is changed to a “115”. The present amendment assumes that the previous amendments of the specification as provided in the response dated March 23, 2004 are also entered.
